THE LAST HOUR COME.

GEN. GRANT DYING SUR-ROUNDED BY HIS FAMILY.

The Hero's Death Bed Scene-The Only Fight He Could Not Win-Death's Cold Hand Claims the Long

MOUNT McGREGOR, N. Y., July 22, -The development of weakness of Gen. Grant during the afternoon was not particularly noticeable from hour to hour, but between 3 o'clock and 6 o'clock p. m. there was a clearly, if not violently, physicians stated that the pulse could not be counted. There were two reasons existent for the inability of the doctors to catch the pulse beats, they were so frequent and so feeble. During the af-ternoon the blood tide had so thickened that it more rapidly wore the system an exmansted the frail basis, if any existed upon which might be placed a hope that the general would rally. The point was reached at 6 o'clock when there was little to be expected from attempts to administer food. Soon after 6 o'clock Har rison came up from the cottage and told Drs. Sands and Shrady that Dr. Douglas desired to see them at the cottage. Thither went the doctors. They remained, however, but a short time. While the temperature of the contract o a short time. While the temper ture of Gen. Grant was nearly, if not quite normal, the respirations were nearly thirty per minute. The family, all the members of which are in attendance, beginning at six o'clock came to the hotel to dinner in twos, the others remaining at the cottage. The family dined in a private room set apart for their use at the hotel, in order that at this critical time they might be secluded from the curious. The closed and si-lenced cottage had all day suggested the enactment of the last scene in Gen.

enactment of the last scene in Gen.
Grant's earthly existence.

A singular occurrence has just been related by Dr. Newman as having occurred in the cottage at 1 o'clock. At 12:55 the general asked the hour of the day. 'One o'clock,' spoke one of those near the general. Soon afterward the cottage clock chimed twelve strokes and the gen ral counted them. Then he wrote on his pad that he observed the clock was wrong and indicated a desire to have it struck to the right hour, which was done, and the incident passed as one more of the remarkable episodes of the general's later sickness.

While the physicians were at dinner to the hotel and called Dr. 1 Douglas, who went at once and alone to the cottage. Soon afterward another messenger summoned Drs. Shrady and Sands, and they repaired to the cottage closely followed by Rev. Dr. Newman. The exits of the doctors and clergyman from the hotel were, however, so quietly effected that few knew that they had been summoned to the cottage. Arrived there they found Gen. Grant again evidently sinking. The general seemed restless. "Would you like to lie down, father?" asked Col Fred Grant, who nofather?" asked Col. Fred Grant, who no-ticed his father's restlessness. The gen-eral nodded, and at the same mo-ment essayed to rise unassisted, but the effort was too great, and he sank back into the chair and the colonel and nurse aided him to arise and then supported him to the bed where he was carefully lowered to a reclining position and partly on his face. Dr. Douglas then rolled the chairs back and one of the rolled the chairs back and one of the physici na has since remarked that the general has now left his chair for the well as of women. As the sun went down a cool breeze as last night sprang up and laymen thought that the cool ght would help Gen. Grant to rally The doctors, however, were prepared to attend the general's death bed at a moment's notice. The doctors stood somewhat apart and the family was near its fast sinking head, and then after an hour, death seemed a little less rapidly gaining on the man it has pursued just nine months to day, for it is just nine months ago to-day that Gen. Grant walked into Dr. Douglas's office to seek his professional aid for the cancer that has done what war could not. Then the doctors and elergymen strolled out upon the piazza and sat near the parlor win-dow, and Jesse Grant joined them at times, but the other members of the family remained in the sick room and watched and waited while the general answered "Yes' and "No" to several questions. A waiter was sent from the hotel to tell Col. Grant that his

of 165 beats to the minute and was flut ering. About 9 o'clock Gen. Grant sank into aleep that was described by a witness as the peaceful and beautiful slep of a child. This condition however is not one to command confidence, for the pulse beats are still rapidly flattering, and the respiration, which normally is 14 to the minute, is now 44. At 10:30, however, it was stated by reliable authority that the general was in slightly better condition than two hours before, and quieter, but answered in a husky voice and promptly. Stimulants were being used sparingly. There was expressed by medical authority about 11 o'clock a be-returned to the cottage. At 9 o'clock the general's pulse was up to the point lief that the closing crisis may occur either at 1 or 4 o'clock in the morning. During the evening the extremities of the sick man have been cold, and in the visible symptoms are the signs that na-ture puts out when death is chilling the powers. The general, as the night passes, seems suffering no pain, though the lines of his face are drawn and the furrows of the brow are knitted as he lies upon the beside which the family are constantly watching.

At 11 o'clock the General was not asleep. The hands and forearms were colder than two hours ago, but the feet not so much so. The pulse and respira-tion had not changed. The patients mind was yet clear and comprehensive of events of atterances about him.
At midnight, Gen. Grant remains quiet

ROBESON ON ROACH'S FAILURE. BURNED THROUGH THE WAYY DEPARTMENT

BY FREE TRADERS AND TARIFF REVISERS. BOSTON, July 22. - Ex-Secretary Robeson passed through Boston yesterday and during a brief stay at Young's Hotel he was seen by a Journal reporter, who asked him to speak of the failure of John Roach and its causes. His time was too short for an extended interview, but he expressed his ideas on the subject briefly "It was what might have been expected, he said. "In fact, what must have hap pened under the circumstances. Mr pened under the circumstances. Mr. Roach from the magnitude of his trans-actions was compelled to carry on much of his business on credit, and when the marked increase in weakness. At 3 o'clock it was possible to measure the pulse beats, but at 6 o'clock one of the physicians stated that the pulse could not be counted. There were two reasons for m by years been wonderful, when it is considered that he has made it solely by his own exertions. What Mr. Roach's resources are no others, of course, can know; but he has always appeared to be a wealthy man, and no doubt he was what he seemed, only force of circumstances has put him into his present position. When the whole question is summed up it amounts to this, that by breaking him down it is h ped to hasten the introduction of free ships. He has always been opposed to letting in ships free of duty, and naturally he has had the free traders and tariff revisers against him, and through the Navy Department they have apparently crushed him.

"There is a prevalent misapprebension," continued Mr. Robeson, "concerning John Roach's connection with the Navy Department during the years I was its secretary. The fact is, that considering Mr. Roach's facilities, he had two of the best yards in the country. He did not have his share of the work that was contracted for. When the four He did not have his share of the work that was contracted for. When the four double-turreted monitors were constructed Mr. Roach had only one of them, the Miantonomoh; another went to Mr. Cramp, the third to Hunt & Hollingsworth, and the fourth was built in California. When the engines for the eight sloops were to be constructed Mr. Roach did not bid for them. The Atlantic Works, of Boston, put in the lowest offer, but it was for only two. In this dilemma Mr. Roach, who was approached, said: 'I don't want this work, but if no one else will take it at that price I will.' The work was offered at the figures named to other concerns, and all of it was taken by them. In these eight years Mr. Roach built more than one hundred iron ships, not more than five of which were for the United States; in fact but a small percentage of States; in fact but a small percentage of his work has ever been for the gov-

REPORTED LOSS OF THREE GOLD BARS FROM THE MINT AT PHILADELPHIA - WHAT AN EXPERT SAYS ABOUT IT.

PRILADELPHIA, July 22.—The report that three bars of silver were missing from the mint was the all-absorbing topic of conversation among the employes of the institution to-day. Col. O. S. Bosbyshell, the chief clerk of the city comptrol ler's office, who acted as coiner of the ler's office, who acted as coiner of the mint for nine years, expressed the opinion that there has been no loss of metal, but simply a clerical error.

"I don't think," he said, "that any bars have been lost at all. From what I can learn there has been no loss of metal. I arrive at the conclusion from the character of the settlement recently made. It is possible that three, or even general has now left his chair for the last time. The belief is that Gen. Grant has at length lain down to die. The family were all'gathered beside the sick man and again Rev. Dr. Newman, at about the same hour as last night and at Mrs. Grant's request, knelt beside the general and prayed. Heads were bowed and tears were on the cheeks of men as the government purchases. Each re-finery numbers its own bars and stamps the weight as well as number of bars used up in the process of ingot manufacture. The dispatch an-nouncing the loss of the bars states that there are three, and places the value at $1,900. This would indicate that only one bar is missing, as the average value is about $1,900 or $2,000. There must be an error somewhere in the figures. If my supposition is correct the error is rely a clerical one, and does not re flect upon the management of the insti-tution or upon the watchfulness or care of the superintendent, during whose

Some of the ports most frequented formerly by these coast-ers are closed. There has been a general dinner waited his coming, but the man was sent back with word that Col. Grant would not dine this evening. The little wants of the body in health sank to inrise in the prices of provisions, which aitherto have been imported in large significance beside the infirmities that disease had wrought upon the man who lay dying before the group of friends in the cottage parlor. Time there passed slowly indeed, and at length, at 8.15 o'clock, Dr. Douglas left the cottage. "How is it, doctor?" was asked him. "He is dying," said the gray-haired physician. "Will he live an hour?" was asked again. "Oh, yes, and possibly more, but he is passing away," was the response, and after a little time at the hotel Dr. Douglas returned to the cottage. THE PRESIDENT'S INTENTIONS. NOW HE WILL MAKE CHANGES IN THE FUTURE-THE DISTRICT APPOINTMENTS. Before the President goes north for his vacation it is probable that he will make all the changes in offices that he intends to. Of late he has made but few removals, although he has worked night and day and has been preparing to start in again. He has got things in proper shape, and a short time before his departure he will make public the changes decided upon. He is considering, it is said, only those cases where the removal of incumbents is demanded, and held to and day and has been preparing to start in again. Smith court-martial to-day numerous papers from the bureau of provisions and clothing were offered and identified. Chief Clerk Denson, of the bureau, was the witness examined.

Mr. Chandler, for the defense, objected to the prosecution making inquiries of this witness as to advertisements for pro-posals. He insisted that the advertise-ments would show for themselves what ments would show for themselves what proposals were called for.

Assistant Attorney General Maury said that it was proposed by the evidence to show that the accused had made contracts without asking for bids.

Some controversy followed, when Judge Advocate Lemly interposed and explained the object of the prosecution.

Mr. Chandler said: "If my friend Maury had been as polite in his explamations as the last gentleman (Mr. Lemly) I would not have taken up the time of the court in objecting, but there is an austerity about the Department of Justice that opposes a question, and I suppose that opposes a question, and I suppose I have to suffer from it."

The regular order was then resumed, and the witness went on producing the letters and documents relating to contracts, all of which were brought out by

After mature consideration the President and Cabinet have reached the conclusion net consultation, and in accordance with the advice of Gen. Sheridan, the Secretary of the Interior has decided to turn over to the War Department the complete control of the Chevyme and reported that no permanent settlement of the Indian troubles in the territory can be effected while the cattlemen are in possession of the best lands, and it is the intention of the President to remove this disturbing element and reserve the In dian territory for the exclusive occupa-tion of the Indians. The method of procedure has not yet been determined. A presidential proclamation may issue, but it is regarded by well informed persons as more probable that actions will be begun in the United States courts of the western division of Kansas having jurisdiction over the territory, looking to a declaration of the invalidity of the

THE CANADIAN RIPLEMEN DEPRATED London, July 22.—The shooting at Wimbledon in the contest for the Kola-pore cup has been finished. The English team won, with a score of 650. The next best scores were: Guernsey team, 639; Jersey team, 612; Canadian team, 597.

LONDON, July 22—At the conclusion of the shooting for the Kolapore cup Col Burt, on behalf of the British rifemen, spoke to the Canadians on their defeat. He said he understood that mirage was unknown in Canada, and more difficult mirage than that at Winbledom to-day was perhaps never seen. The Canadians, although unlucky on this field, have shown what they could do on another field. They would carry back the good wishes and admiration of everybody in England, especially of the volunteers.

Capt. Clark replied, thanking Col.
Burt for his kind remarks. He said that the Canadians would not return emptyhanded. The conditions of the mirage to-day were different from those of any ever seen in Canada; but the Canadians were quite satisfied with the honors the had already won.
